Native speaking Translator for: Italian or Spanish or French or German Place of work: near Amsterdam, The Netherlands
Number of place: 2
Description:
iSP has been a leading software localization provider to the IT industry for almost two decades. We're proud to work with world-class customers including: Adobe Systems, Autodesk, Canon, Dantz, Electronic Arts and many more. Currently we are looking for native speaking translators for the following languages: Italian, French, Spanish, Dutch and German. We are offering full time positions for translators within our office near Amsterdam.
Our translators have the cultural, linguistic, and computer skills necessary to provide professional, consistent, and accurate technical translations. At iSP, speaking a language is not enough. All our translators are native speakers, born and educated in the 'target' country. The success of our clients' products is a direct result of the dedication our team brings to their work. iSP is looking for new professionals to join our growing team. By joining our team, they will be part of an outstanding group of individuals.
We will offer in-house training in a variety of translation memory and other CAT (Computer Aided Translation) tools. We are specifically looking for native speakers with a University background in translation in their mother tongue. We expect successful candidates to work fulltime with the rest of our team while we offer on the job training on real projects.
iSP is based in Ouderkerk aan de Amstel in the vicinity of Amsterdam, the Netherlands.
I hope this brief introduction gives sufficient information otherwise please contact our website: www.isp.nl, where one could also find our job descriptions.
